Believes Soviets were after Rep. McDonald

Editor, The Argus: I have talked to a number of people about the shooting down of K.A.L. Flight 007, and while all of them agree that it was a cruel, barbaric act, most are puzzled as to why and how the plane was so far off course when it was shot down.

On July 26, 1983, Hillaire Du Berrier, the late Rep. Larry McDonald's adviser on foreign affairs, was contacted by the former air marshall in the South Korean Air Force. He had acquired information on the Soviet method of Misdirecting Inertial Navigation Systems.

In April 1978, another South Korean airliner mysteriously wandered 180° off course, finding itself well over the Soviet Union in a region bristling with Red anti-aircraft defences. That time the Soviets let loose a missile that killed some of the passengers and forced the plane to make a crash landing. Moscow was then also aware that its victim was a civilian jet.

Larry MacDonald founded Western Goals Foundation to tell the American People the truth about subversion and terrorism, to rebuild and strengthen the political, economic and social structure of the United States, and to name the leaders of terrorist organizations and give the locations of their depots of arms.

The computerized files of Western Goals Foundation were considered espionage by Yuri Andropov and the Chief of Staff of the Soviet Army reportedly ordered the shooting down of Flight 007. Perhaps they figured without Larry McDonald, Western Goals Foundation couldn't survive, so he had to be put away permanently.
